

Standards of Excellence in Nutrition and Dietetics

Quality of Organization

Organizational systems empower RDNs and NDTRs to make decisions at an organizational level. For example: RDN/NDTR team identifies, develops, and champions organization processes for high quality service.

Quality of Practice

Quality nutrition and dietetic services and programs utilize RDN/NDTR professional expertise. For example: the organization uses RDN and NDTR Scope and Standards of Practice to develop job descriptions and career pathways.

Quality of Outcomes

Nutrition-related outcomes are measured, and performance, value, and satisfaction are documented. In addition, outcomes are utilized to refine continuous quality improvement plans. For example: staff creates performance improvement goals to improve quality of services.

Quality of Leadership

Nutrition and Dietetic credentialed practitioners are part of the leadership within the organization and profession. There is evidence of supporting volunteer leadership, individual honors and awards, and mentorship. For example: RDN or NDTR is a manager, director, or VP.